

The mining industry and the civil engineering sector may seem worlds apart. Even so, all the solutions which Maccaferri offers can be applied within the mining industry.

Over the past 10 years, the use of Maccaferri products in the mining industry has increased considerably. Special dedication and attention is given to Maccaferri solutions as they are applied to different circumstances in different countries around the world to help resolve mining problems.

The mining activity is one of the oldest activities exercised by man; the oldest traces go back more than 40,000 years. Modern mining businesses in many countries follow strict environmental guidelines ensuring that the mined area recovers to its original condition or to an even better environmental condition than before the mining activity took place. At Maccaferri, we can help you adhere to these guidelines.
